VALE BARRY SHORT 11.8.41 – 26.3.17

It is with sorrow that we report of the death of Barry Short. He died of a stroke after knee replacement surgery.

Barry joined the club as an 18-year-old in 1960 after reading about the club in Walk magazine. There were many young members in MBW in the early 60's. Like many people, Barry eagerly threw himself into walking, becoming a regular leader very soon. At Christmas that year Barry did a 19-day walk in the Victorian Alps: Crooked River to Mt. Cobbler led by Val Goldsmith. He also did long walks in Tasmania, including the Overland Track and South-West Tasmania. This latter trip included an aerial food drop, something that is not done nowadays. Another long trip that Barry did was caving on the Nullabor Plains led by Rex Filson.

Barry's profession was a cartographer and at one stage in the 60's he was offered the chance to participate in a field trip in Central Australia. He was a general assistant and one of his jobs was to ensure the fridge was well stocked with beer. He also delivered supplies to an out camp. On one trip his vehicle broke down. This was before the days of easy communication, but he knew someone would come looking for him next day when he had failed to return to camp. However the problem was that Barry was only dressed in shorts and shirt, not expecting to spend the night on the track. Knowing that the temperature would drop drastically, he searched the truck for something to wear. All he could find was a carton of toilet paper so he wound himself a paper cocoon and settled down to wait for rescue. No doubt next day his rescuers might have thought they had found an Egyptian mummy!

Barry met Gwenda in the club and they married, no doubt becoming the recipients of a club spoon. They eased up on the walking but kept their interest in the club. For many years they printed News on the club Gestetner at their house. This would be a social occasion with people turning up to help with production. When their son Roger was old enough they would go on club Family Walks, an informal offshoot of the club. More recently Barry and Gwenda walked with a group of old Bushies on regular social walks. Barry kept his membership of the club and always took an interest in what was happening.

We give our heartfelt condolences to Gwenda and to Roger and his family. Also to his brother Peter and his family.

A good mate who has reached the end of the track.

LOST AND FOUND

Have you started packing for a walk and not been able to find your favourite bit of gear? Can't quite remember when you last saw it? Well it is always possible that you lost it on a club trip and it is fermenting along with other unloved items in the club's "Found Box". Next time you drop by the clubrooms ask about your missing friend and you may be lucky enough to find it has not died of asphyxiation whilst co-habiting with its newly-found unwashed companions.

Leader Training UNIT 5 – CONDUCTING THE WALK WEDNESDAY 10 MAY 7:30 pm in the Clubrooms

Our training continues for module 1 with the next instalment of unit 5. It involves procedures which assist you to conduct the walk. This is an excellent unit in preparation for the Federation weekend. The outline of this unit is as follows:

- tasks you are advised to perform in the week prior to the walk;
- tasks you are advised to perform on the day of your walk prior to arriving at the actual start of the walk;
- tasks you are advised to perform after you arrive at the actual start point for the walk but before you start walking;
- how to conduct your walk in a safe manner so that all participants enjoy the walk;
- tasks you are advised to perform at the completion of the walk;
- the basics of handling accidents or incidents on your walk;
- people management skills through some scenarios.

PRESIDENT'S COLUMN – MAY 2017

As a regular reader of the club newsletter you will have already seen a number of notices and references to the Federation Walks Weekend to be held in Warburton this year, from the 27th to 29th October. You may also have taken in the fact that it is being hosted by Melbourne Bushwalkers on behalf of Bushwalking Victoria, and all of the other bushwalking clubs across the State that are affiliated with Bushwalking Victoria – around 70 in total. For many of you who are relatively new to the club, however, the significance and history of the event may not be clear.

The Federation Walks Weekend (Fedwalks) is the pre-eminent bushwalking event on the Bushwalking Victoria calendar. It has been held every year since 1935, except for the war years 1942-46, and 2009 when bushfires devastated Victoria's walk areas. Melbourne Bushwalkers Inc., formed in 1940, has been an active participant and organiser of the annual Fedwalks event since the club's formation, starting with the co-hosting with the Melbourne Women's Walking Club in 1951. This was a very fitting partnership for Melbourne Bushwalkers since we were the first mixed-gender bushwalking club in Victoria after the broader YHA.

Since 1951 the club has jointly hosted or co-hosted the event in:

- 1955 – Lyonville and Mason's Falls
(with Victorian Mountain Tramping Club);
- 1962 – Mount Macedon;
- 1967 – Daylesford & Kerrie
(with Victorian Mountain Tramping Club & Catholic Walking Club of Victoria);
- 1970 – Bullarto & Fraser NP
(with Melbourne Amateur Walking & Touring Club);
- 1980 – Belgrave & Britannia Creek
(with Walking Club of Victoria);
- 1990 – Murrindindi;
- 1999 – Brisbane Ranges;
- 2004 – Rawson & Walhalla
(with Ben Cruachan & Strzelecki Bushwalking Clubs);
- 2017 – Warburton.

March 1949: Federation Weekend – Stonyford Creek.
(Image: Horst Eisfelder Collection, Melbourne Bushwalkers' Archive)

The naming of the event has much to do with the history of Bushwalking Victoria, formerly known as The Federation of Victorian Bushwalking Clubs, until it was re-named and refocussed in 2006. At the time of the Fedwalks event in 2004 the Melbourne Bushwalkers organisers noted: "The Federation's membership is comprised of 82 Victorian walking clubs and the organisation's objectives (summarised) are to:

- Co-operate with other organisations having like interests;
- Promote recreational bushwalking;
- Encourage co-operation amongst bushwalking clubs;
- Maintain a search and rescue section;
- Promote the maintenance of walking tracks;
- Distribute information of interest to bushwalkers; and
- Promote conservation."

The organising of such a weekend is no mean feat and the planning for 2017 commenced nearly two years ago. Planning and preparations has included:

- Locating a suitable area for walking with accommodation options in the vicinity for up to 400 people;
- Finding a range of walks – 20 on all, repeated on Saturday and Sunday;
- Documenting the walks and compiling a booklet;
- Organising volunteer leaders and substitutes to preview and lead walks;
- Finding speakers for Saturday evening;
- Arranging catering requirements.
- Risk management considerations; and
- Planning for Base administration.

Taking on such a major event builds character and culture in a club that carries it forward into the future. When bookings open in early-July I look forward to a strong participation from Members. Past-President Margaret Curry and her team of other club volunteers are doing us proud and your involvement will ensure a memorable outcome.

GREAT FOREST NATIONAL PARK – BY TRIA MANLEY OF THE WILDERNESS SOCIETY

Tria Manley is a Community Organiser with The Wilderness Society and advocate for the Great Forest National Park. She delivers training programs to empower and upskill communities to campaign for environmental protection across Australia, including protecting the majestic forests of Victoria.

In this talk, Tria will give an overview of the state of the forests of the Central Highlands, and present the opportunities that creating a new national park in the region will provide for protecting our water, tallest flowering trees on Earth, wildlife such as the critically endangered Leadbeater's Possum and our climate, as well as offering a sustainable alternative for communities and future generations.

LEADER TRAINING REPORT 2017

In 2014/15, with the assistance of a State Government Grant, Leadership Training for Day and Extended Activities were developed by teams from BWV and major clubs. Two modules were produced, comprising units with pre-reading, trainer's notes, trainee handouts and presentation material. This content was then made available for clubs to use as required.

This Leader training by BWV formed the basis for MBW in-house training which has been offered Wednesday evenings in the clubrooms. MBW has adopted the core components of the BWV material, with relevant additions incorporating MBW documents/policies. An initial review was compiled by Mick Noonan reviewing the BWV content and recommending that the material was worth implementing for MBW.

MBW goal in 2016/17 is to deliver Module 1 Units 1–6 to all interested leaders, targeting potential leaders. The sessions have successfully been delivered with over twenty participants completing the first 3 units of Module 1. Sessions ran for 90 minutes in the clubrooms over various Wednesday nights with a full day repeated on a Saturday 4th March which offered others the opportunity to complete these same units.

Navigation training organised by experts such as Roger Wyatt and First Aid Training coordinated by Nigel Holmes have also complemented the Wednesday sessions which cover unit 6 within module 1.

MBW is pleased to be adding to the database of current leaders willing to step up and confidently take on the role of leading of MBW walks, which allows the club to keep offering the varied program of bushwalking. A better understanding of the material with its modifications has provided content which we can repeat regularly for interested members and ensured our commitment for ongoing training to continue and meet our Club needs.

GEAR TIPS – TENTS

For years freestanding tents with rain-protected side entries and good sized vestibules have provided the most liveable and easy to use three-season accommodation. Unfortunately they have been significantly heavier than the lightest styles. Now, with cheap Chinese imports snapping at their heels, some progressive manufacturers have sharpened their designs and minimised the weight penalty. Here are three that stand out from the crowd:

3F UL Gear 15D 1 Person 3 Season Tent

Available from AliExpress.

Packed weight approx 1340 g plus a 150 g floor protector.

Price approx $150 including a floor protector and postage (very slow).

This tent is not the lightest in its class but offers excellent value. It is similar in design and weight to the classic MSR Hubba NX but costs less than a quarter as much. It is slightly less refined with eyelets rather than clips securing the fly but has an accessible rear vestibule and can be ordered with a mainly solid or mainly mesh inner.

Note: The club has one for hire.

You may find the eyelets attaching the fly to the cross pole are sewn in too far apart but can easily be relocated with a little hand stitching.

Big Agness Copper Spur UL 1 Person 3 Season Tent

Not stocked locally but available on line from numerous retailers without restriction.

Packed weight approx 1100 g plus a 140 g floor protector.

Price approx $580 including postage but can sometimes be found heavily discounted (I have recently purchased the tent and a floor protector from Campsaver.com for about $400 including postage).

This well-executed fully-featured tent is one of the lightest in its class. Its asymmetrical design maximises usable space but somewhat limits sighting options.

Nemo Hornet Elite 1 Person 3 Season Tent.

Not stocked locally and subject to import restrictions. It can however be purchased through an intermediary such as Price USA.

Packed weight approx 850 g plus a floor protector (if available).

Price approx $670 including postage but can sometimes be found heavily discounted.

This innovative asymmetrical design is less spacious than the Big Agnes and only offers a rain-protected entry with the door partially closed but makes up for it with an exceptionally low weight. A slightly heavier version, the Nemo Hornet (920g) is available locally from Paddy Pallin for $580 and might suit those uncomfortable with the Elite's extremely thin fabrics.

WALKING ON THE BOGONG HIGH PLAINS FROM THE ROVER CHALET

On Wednesday 8 February, 22 Melbourne Bushies drove up to the Rover Chalet, where we usually ski for a week in winter, for some summer walking. We were able to rent the hut for 5 days because some of our members have done the Rover training on how to use the hut (and others are also familiar with its workings). The weather was warm and sunny to very hot, the wildflowers very beautiful, although many had already flowered earlier.

On the first day we climbed Mount Cope from the chalet, where we had great views, then went down over the back. Some went back to the chalet via the aqueduct and then the snow pole line, others took Rodney's more strenuous trip down to a picturesque rocky waterfall, which involved quite a lot of climbing over rocks and fallen logs. This group arrived back later and more tired than the rest. However, a hot shower and dinner on the table, and they all chirped up.

On Friday we all drove to the Pretty Valley Dam for a walk to Mt Jaitmathang (formerly known as the Niggerheads). Some only went to Tawonga Huts, others to the top, and a separate group to Mt Fainter with Bill. Again this group got in later and more tired than those who just did the summit. The summit-only group, having taken in views of the mountains and plains, walked back across soft grassy snow plains where they saw some brumbies, as well as white everlastings and bright blue alpine bluebells. Some of this group finished the day with a swim in Pretty Valley Dam.

On Saturday Alex led a walk to Fitzgerald's Hut via the aqueduct. We had lunch at the hut under some very old snow gums which had survived the 2003 bushfires. There were also carpets of orange-yellow everlasting daisies. We returned by following the Alpine Track back to the aqueduct – quite a long day except for the few who drove to Langfords Gap.

Sunday we packed up the chalet and headed off home, just as it began to rain.

In between the walking there was lots of chatting and socializing, not to mention nibbling. I think we all enjoyed the comforts of the chalet, so far away from a ski village, although we had some hiccups with the electricity supply and the water. It was great to be able to go on walks straight from the chalet. While alpine spring is probably at its height in December, we saw many plants still flowering and the whole area had a beautiful perfume. Walking through alpine mint bush, it released a pungent peppermint smell. In the open snow grass plains and damper areas the ground was carpeted with a variety of subtle ground covers.

Doug, the leader, catered for the evening meals, with everyone sharing the food preparation, cooking and washing up. Thanks to Bill and David, in particular, for dealing with the technical issues and Merilyn and Mike and other experienced Rover chalet hands for keeping the wheels turning. Doug might even be persuaded to repeat the trip in December to see the flowers at their best. Thanks too to the Rovers for allowing us to rent their chalet, which we have been enjoying for winter ski trips since our own club hut, Wilkinsons, near by, was accidentally burnt down in 2004.

ERITH AND DEAL ISLANDS February 8 to 13, 2017

Our group met up at Port Albert, Gippsland, on Wednesday February 8 for a Thursday morning departure at daybreak. Our trip started with a voyage on board the 50-foot-long catamaran “Nooramunga”, skippered by Wynne and Carol Hobson. Expert sailing didn't stop a few of us suffering sea-sickness on the nine hour voyage.

Erith Island, half way between Wilson's Promontory and Flinders Island in Bass Strait, was home to us for 5 nights. We chose our camp sites among the scrub, above the most gorgeous little beach looking across to Deal Island, which was our destination for the first two days. Shuttled by zodiac between Erith Island and the mother ship, we then set off for Deal Island. The trip took about half an hour in total.

Deal Island offered us open walking tracks, often along old bullock or vehicle tracks, lined with she-oaks and frequented by gentle Bennett's wallabies and Cape Barren geese with their green nose-rings. The old tracks had once serviced the lighthouse and its keepers. The lighthouse was de-commissioned because it was often in the clouds, being at a height of 350 metres. It was in clouds on our first day too, so instead we ventured on tracks to Barn Hill, with views across two other islands in the Kent Group, Erith Island and Dover Island. We saw old grave sites, a circular “whim”, where a horse once plodded in circles to drive pulleys to move supplies from the jetty along a steep tram track, which also remains

An amazing museum on the island, surely one of the most remote museums on earth, showed us more about the past life of Deal Island and Bass Strait. It's a museum much loved by “Friends” of Deal Island, other visitors and the two voluntary caretakers, who actively welcome kayakers, yachties and walkers, and care for the island for a period of 12 weeks at a time.

We climbed to the lighthouse on Day 3, our second day of walking. Old brick lighthouse-keeping cottages were still there, though the lighthouse keepers themselves had had to vacate them years ago to protect their children from respiratory diseases associated with the damp atmosphere. Some of our group ventured further down from the lighthouse to see an air crash site from WW2.

Our fourth and fifth days were spent on Erith Island, with us all struggling against the gale force winds lashing our tents on night four. Walking on Erith Island was a different style altogether from Deal Island. It was not open at all. There were large deep tussocks of poa grass and abundant eucalyptus, ti tree and she-oaks. We would also scramble across boulders, rounded pebbles and rocks, bash or “surf” through dense shrubbery or climb up steep, vegetated dunes. Destinations on Erith Island included Wallabi Cove and the swashway between Erith and Dover Islands, which is walkable at low tide.

The trip was under the expert leadership of Meredith Q., our wine aficionado. Tim C. was our resident barista, with coffee grinder and Italian espresso machine in tow. Steve I. was toilet digger and site selector extraordinaire, Maciek D. and Kellie had unending enthusiasm, Jana P. was one of our symbols of youth, Kate L. was a great coach and motivator and Barbara D, our Spartan, eating cold food the whole trip. Our visitors Genevieve from France and Keith and John fitted in brilliantly and we hope they will join the club.

It was a privilege to be part of this sailing and walking excursion.

WELLINGTON PLAINS – LAKE TALİ KARNG 10–13 March 2017

Big smiles and small fire in the campground firepit greeted Jill, Judith and I, on our arrival at Kelly's Lane Camp Ground. The first group had arrived early to ensure we had the premium location. By midnight, the last travellers for that day had arrived and settled into their tents for the night.

The next morning we completed our drive to the high country at McFarlane's Saddle where we commenced our walk across the Wellington Plain to Nyimba Camp. On arrival at the camp we observed that many of the sheltered sites had been snapped up by keen walkers, we decided to press on to the opposite side of Nigothoruk Creek where a suitable site was selected for us to establish our home for the next two nights.

After a short first lunch, Mark has us back on our feet again. We walked into the Alpine National Park, through the bush damaged by the 2006 fires. Many of the burned trees have shot to life again with healthy branches now enveloping the burnt stumps. We passed the rustic Miller's Hut, we pressed on through snow gum country on our way to Gable End for our second lunch, the skies were clear and we took in the magnificent views promised in the sales brochure.

With the group keen to explore the area, we headed off through the open fields of late alpine daisies towards the Sentinals. Again, we were not disappointed, we managed to get a glimpse of Tali Karng below and Jopie's encyclopaedic knowledge of the area was tested by all, as he named mountain peaks valleys and ridges.

Upon return to camp we discovered a surprise visitor, Hans from the Ballarat Bushwalkers managed to squeeze his tent amongst ours. We introduced ourselves, extended a Melbourne Bushies welcome and that night around our campfire the usual banter was exchanged. At around 10 pm Jeanette advised those still around the campfire that it was time to turn it down or retire for the night. The remainder of the night was very quiet.

At 8:30am Hans was still in his tent and we were on our way to the jewel of the trip, Lake Tali Karng. The chosen route was Riggall Spur Track and Echo Point Track, the distance is a little longer but on a slightly easier grade. The day was warm and sunny. The relatively warm water of the lake was the perfect place to find the hole in my mattress and for Ray and myself to cool off and freshen up. Most of the group then walked to the bottom falls, Jopie, Mark, Ray and Jeanette scaled the rocks to explore the next two falls. At the top falls Jopie encouraged by others taking an earlier dip, did likewise only to discover the creek pool was several degrees cooler than the lake. After a long lunch by the lake the return journey was by the shorter but steeper Gillios Track. We took our time and climbed steadily to Echo Point.

Upon return to the Nyimba Campsite we observed smoke rising from the nearby hills. Mark immediately put his emergency plan into action, making calls to the relevant authorities to get the data to make the best decision for the group. With a strong South West wind blowing away from us and no indicator for a sudden wind change, the call was made, we would remain in the area.

Our last morning planned departure time was 8:30am, but all were ready and waiting 30 minutes earlier, we were heading out of the park. We crossed the creek and headed up onto the Wellington Plains, the light winds made the morning smoke haze heavy in the air. Now able to get good communications signals, the phone calls were made and web pages interrogated to get the latest information on the fires in the area.

Again, the area was deemed safe and our planned departure was via Spion Kopje, an easy climb with the view somewhat reduced due to the smoke haze. Upon decent to the track the group split into two with seven of the group opting to return to the cars, whilst the remaining seven walked across the alpine meadow to the Mt Wellington Road and up to the summit. The source of much of the smoke in the area (Moroka ranges) could be observed, along with the firefighting helicopters and water bombing planes. After leaving our stones on the massive cairn, we turned back to the meadow and returned safely to the cars. As Mark said in the brochure, it was a perfect way to spend the long weekend.

Participants: Mark Simpson (Leader), Roger Wyett, Ray Spooner, Meredith Quick, Jeanette Burnett, Jill Allen, Judith Shaw, Deb Bishop, Di McKinley, Fang Fang, Bill Burnett, Jopie Bodegraven, Roy Rossebo and Brett Daniel

Thank you Mark for a terrific long weekend!

A TALE OF TWO LIGHTHOUSES (MARCH 6–13)

Doug organised a trip to two lighthouses for 16 bushwalkers. Our group of eight stayed first at Gabo Island for three nights, followed by Point Hicks for another 3 nights. The other group of eight did the reverse. At the end of the trip ten of us met up at the Cann River pub where it was very interesting to find out: who slept in each bedroom and with whom; who snored; who got bitten, by what and where; whose wounds were still bleeding and who broke Jan's glasses. Also of importance was what was on the menu and who cooked the best meals.

We had planned on leaving Mallacoota for Gabo Island at 9:00 am but there was a big swell and large waves near Bastion Point so the departure was delayed for a few hours. The swell had died down a little by 11:00 am so our boatman decided that though it was "marginal" we could go. The driver of the boat took about 10 minutes before finding a break in the waves which allowed us to get out to the open ocean. Depending on your point of view the 30 minute trip in the small boat from Bastion Point to Gabo Island was a wild and exhilarating ride (like going over moguls on your skis or riding a bucking horse) or a somewhat frightening ordeal. Most of us were so intent on holding on that we missed seeing Tullaberga Island on the way, which was the site of a famous shipwreck.

We docked at the jetty situated on the only beach on the island and were met by the ranger, Leo, who collected our luggage and drove it across the island to our assistant lighthouse keeper's cottage. Leo's job involves looking after the island, lighthouse and visitors. He welcomed us and told us about the island. He also gave us some fresh salad vegetables and herbs from his garden. In the dining room on a polished wooden table he had arranged red dahlias in a vase. Our "cottage" was really very grand – a solid and well-proportioned historic building with tall ceilings made of Gabo Island pink granite. The same beautiful stone was used for the lighthouse, the lighthouse keeper's residence and surrounding walls.

We had plenty of opportunity to scramble over the island's rocks. We could see where rocks had been quarried and where some had been cut and left. We were all in awe at the skill and labour involved in building by hand Australia's second tallest lighthouse.

Little Gabo is a large rock just off the shore of Gabo Island and a short walk from our cottage. It was a favourite platform for cormorants and seals. We watched the seals swimming in the wild sea below the rock and then trying to get back up. They had to wait for just the right swell to carry them so that they could launch back up again. Visible from the cottage was a group of three seals on their own rock – 'the bachelor pad' said Doug.

Three nights at Gabo was just the right length of time to spend walking over the moulted feathers of fairy penguins and stumbling across their burrows all day in order to sight a total of just three fairy penguins plus one decapitated head. Although this island has the world's largest fairy penguin colony, our stay coincided with the 15-day annual penguin moult. During this time the penguins bunker down in their burrows. As for the shearwaters, hundreds could be seen far out to sea if you knew how to focus through binoculars. But they didn't fly back to their burrows at dusk because the bright moon made them "skittish" (in the words of the researchers we met who were on the island studying them). Nevertheless we enjoyed our walks at dusk with torches covered by red cellophane.

Point Hicks lighthouse is also situated in a remote location on a wild and rocky point in Croajingalong National Park. This lighthouse was built in 1890, 37 years after Gabo lighthouse and about 10 metres shorter. The lighthouse is made of concrete painted white and the cottages are made from timber and more basic than Gabo. We had a great view out to Bass Strait from our verandah however and could just make out a group of seals swimming near a distant rock. John and other sceptics were convinced the seals were just kelp at first. By the end of the 3 days even the eyes of the kelp sceptics had adjusted and could quickly pick out the seals near their favourite rock.

We had beautiful walks on deserted beaches and swims in the cold ocean and Thurra River. The twitchers Jan and Doug were indefatigable pointing out many birds. At one stage Doug strode up to Jan on the beach brandishing a dead bird in one hand as though it were a trophy: "Look Jan – a petrel..." We saw hooded plovers and John pointed out the POC's (pied oyster catchers) patrolling the beach. This bird obsession was catchy. Back at the cottage a pair of sea eagles hovered over us.

Jerry proved himself to be the venerable elder of the group by noticing how the sands had shifted in time. He pointed out a largely vegetated hill with a sandy top and recalled the days when that hill was all dune from the top down to Thurra River. We climbed up to see the dunes and the following day climbed up Mt. Everard for more extensive views.

We discovered two free campsites which may be of interest to bushwalkers. The first was at Genoa Rest area on the banks of the Genoa River and the second was at Cann River by the Cann. Both places had plenty of flat grassy sites and shade. You have to share with grey nomads in their enormous vehicles and the toilet facilities are basic. But the surrounding countryside is beautiful and just at the back of the Cann River camp ground is a 2 km rainforest walk making it a lovely stopover.

On our last night at Point Hicks we sang together as Helen led us on her ukulele. Among other songs we sang the "Swimming Song" by the McGarrigle sisters, repeating the third verse in tribute to our intrepid leader Doug who was the only one of us to swim informal without his swimming suit! Many thanks go to Doug and Jan for organising such a wonderful trip. Thank you also to fellow bushwalkers- Faye, Jerry, Helen, John and Graham for sharing this experience.

PROM IN A DAY WITH WOMBATS 31 March – 2 April

It's a club tradition, to occasionally go down to Wilsons Prom and walk the Sealers Cove – Refuge Cove – Waterloo Bay – Oberon Bay circuit as a rather long day walk of approximately 40.4 km. The attraction is obvious to those who know the Prom. Marvellous coastal scenery and you get to do it carrying only a light day pack instead of labouring under a bigger heavier overnight pack.

Things started off ominously on Friday night. As well as fabulous scenery and beaches, the Prom is also known for its wildlife, including wombats. They are like little tanks on legs and in the Tidal River campground they have been spoilt by humans feeding them and have no fear of humans. In fact they see us as an easy source of food. One such determined little tank visited us on Friday evening and visited several tents. He didn't knock, just stuck his head through the mesh leaving a gaping hole while John tried to pull him out. He later got inside another tent, wandered under tables and generally made a jolly nuisance of himself. A new couple in our group were so traumatised by his overnight rampage that next morning they packed up and left, not prepared to endure another night of wombat terror. On Saturday night he damaged another tent and walked over Clive's tent, over his legs in fact.

Saturday morning we set off from Telegraph Saddle at 7:30 am when it was finally properly light. We were nine, Judith our leader, Sue, Meredith, Carol, John, Meredith, Clive, Anita and me. Jenny chose to have a relaxing day of shorter walks. John took off like a rocket because he was the only one wanting to do the superman option of flying around the Prom via all the bays we were visiting plus the lighthouse, a leg numbing 60 km!

The weather was cool, overcast and windy with a few spots of rain and occasional sunshine, in other words typical Prom weather. But the scenery of course was beautiful as always. After second morning tea at Refuge Cove the group split into two with the three speedy ones zooming on ahead and the remaining five of us plodding along at a more sensible pace.

The ploddy five arrived back at camp at 6:30 pm. The speedies had been back for over an hour and Super John arrived about 15 minutes after the ploddies. I think we were all suitably tired, with a few aches and pains and the odd patched up blister but all rather pleased with ourselves.

Next morning we all had a leisurely breakfast and all found excuses for not doing a short winddown Sunday stroll so we all headed home. Thanks Judith for doing all the organising and thanks everyone for making it another memorable Prom in a day weekend.

A WEEKEND IN MY FAVOURITE AREA Helicopter – Stanleys Name Spurs, 25–26 March 2016

Gina and I had left it rather late to decide whether or not to go on this weekend walk – we had only been home for a few days and we'd been a bit busy ... but by Friday midday (!) we had the leader's permission to join the crew. We packed in a couple of hours, and left home at 4:30 pm, in good time to mix it with the rush-hour travellers. We found the slumbering group at the Upper Howqua camping site where we quietly pitched the tent and retired.

This weekend was a combined VMTC and MBW walk with two groups, starting and finishing at the same point, but going around the circuit in different directions, with a joint camping site. It was an opportunity not to be missed!

At 8:00 am our group led by Geoff Kelly set off in a thick mist along the Howqua River track, while the other group led by Helen Geddes began the climb up Helicopter Spur. Our route was along an old benched road, which originally had allowed access to a marvellous site for fossils. This area had been an inland sea a mere 380 million years ago, so that many thousands of fish fossils have been found here. We crossed the Howqua River five times – no wet feet this time as the water level was low. We slowly climbed, joining the Queens Spur Road (just an old track now) to join Stanleys Name Spur. The vegetation was damp, if not wet, so soon we were counting the leeches. Wearing shorts, I caught quite a few around the knees. Later, blood patches on my shorts revealed a couple of adventurous ones had reached the nether regions! Some steep rock scrambling was required to reach the top of the spur and the infamous Crosscut Saw, joining the Australian Alps Walking Track where we turned right towards Mt Howitt. But no views! Nothing could be seen of Terrible Hollow, and where was Mt Speculation, my favourite campsite? It wasn't until we had nearly reached Mt Howitt (1742 m) that we had our first views as the mists began to clear. Catching our breath at the top we took our first photos of the mountain peaks, now clearing nicely, which some of us have come to know well over the years. Bypassing West Peak we made our way down to the long saddle which was to be our campsite for the night. The other group were already there but this site could easily accommodate all twenty of us, and many more with ease. The water supply was not good, as the spring was silted up making it useless, and the creek was hardly flowing. However, we managed and dinner was soon on the go with a warming campfire to help the conversation as we compared our days. Someone produced a whole bottle (plastic) of red wine – now that deserves a commendation! I was lucky enough to have a glug or two, and it was much appreciated.

After a somewhat restless night Gina and I overslept and only awoke at 7:15, when the leaving time was 8 am! Our practised routine swung into action and we were (just) ready on time! A fine day was heralded as we passed Hells Window and climbed Mt Magdala (1725 m). Morning tea number two was at Picture Point on the Bluff Track (4WD). We visited that fine old snow gum with many huge trunks that stands just off the road, which I'm sure that many vehicles pass by without seeing. In fact, we almost missed it as well! This tree must be the king of the high country. After a little hesitation we found the beginning of the Helicopter Spur track and began the descent. There are three steep cliffs on this spur, necessitating some careful scrambling. The third one is the biggest and we had to back-track a little to find a route down the side. Looking back at it from our lunch spot further on it appeared most formidable! The next part of the track was horrible – eroded, very steep, slippery gravel, with few footholds and no handholds. I was grateful for my walking pole. Nearing the bottom the track follows an old timber road or tramway and becomes clear and wide. By 2:30 pm we had reached the cars, and I quickly made for the river for an all-over wash, being very hot and sweaty. Lots of "oohs" and "aahs" could be heard as we found shallow pools in which to splash around.

Helen's group came in shortly after we left but we caught up in Yea where nineteen of us had dinner. This was an apt finish to an excellent weekend, the more so as it was a joint club effort. Thank you Geoff, for leading our group so well and thanks are due to Helen for the overall leadership.

Daylesford is one of those towns that has something for everyone. For this week's Sunday Bus we will be travelling direct to Daylesford, where everyone will have an hour's leisure time before the walks commence to visit the famous Daylesford Sunday Market where a long lost hidden treasure (or maybe just some interesting junk) can be found, or just relax over a morning coffee and hearty breakfast if you wish. Both walks will then commence along the Tipperary track.

For the more energetic walkers, the Easy/Medium longer walk along the Tipperary Track will be about 14.5 km, starting at Jacksons Lookout, and will move at a slightly faster pace through dry forest and along gullies until it reaches Breakneck Gorge. The Easy walk starts at this point, after which both groups follow the same route. Lunch for both groups will be at the Blowhole on Sailors Creek which is a fascinating part of our gold mining history. An optional Ridge Loop of 650 m can be followed from the lower level of the Blowhole to get back to the Tipperary Track. From the Blowhole the track follows Sailors Creek past Bryces Flat to Tipperary Springs before continuing to follow the Tipperary Track as far as Twin Bridges.

Both walks offer a diverse walking experience with lots of points of historic interest along the way.

The Burchell Trail – 40km – 3 days, side trip to Anakie Gorge 6km return.

Little more than an hour's drive from Melbourne takes you to the state's richest wildflower habitat. Set in a low range of mountains dissected by rocky gullies, the unusual geology of Brisbane Ranges National Park has preserved plants that have long since vanished from the region, together with a correspondingly diverse bird population and the greatest density of koalas in Victoria.

The Burchell Trail is a great way to see the Brisbane Ranges National Park as it traverses the length of the Park.

On Saturday morning we will meet at Boar Gully Camping Ground and do a car shuffle. The walk will commence from Steiglitz Courthouse, we will walk approx. 12 km to camp at Old Mill camp ground. The walk follows orange track markers and uses existing walks, management tracks and public roads. Sunday our destination is the picturesque Little River Camp site located at the junction of the Little River and Rileys Creek, 16 km with an optional side trip to Anakie Gorge. The walk will finish at Boar Gully Camping Ground, 10 km from Little River.

MAP REFERENCE Hattah Lakes 1:25,000 (Outdoor Leisure Map)

Situated about 450 km from Melbourne, the 48 000 hectare Hattah-Kulkyne National Park is one of only three Biosphere Reserves in Victoria. During flood periods, the lakes are recognised as some of Australia's significant wetlands under an international agreement (the Ramsar Convention) for the protection of Wetlands. The area is regarded as particularly special because of the large flow of permanent water in the nearby Murray River and a number of freshwater lakes seasonally filled by creeks connected to the Murray. This habitat provides food and shelter for a large number of waterbirds, animals and fish.

Hattah-Kulkyne National Park lies in typical flat mallee country with extensive low scrub and open native pine woodland. Superbly adapted birds, animals and vegetation thrive in the poor, sandy soils and searing summers. Our walk will take us along a mixture of 4WD vehicle tracks and open scrubland, passing by a number of lakes along the way. We will camp on the banks of the Murray River with our walking days relatively short so that we can enjoy the Murray River surroundings. Autumn, winter and spring are the best times to visit this rich wonderland.

Contact Ian Mair or see him in the club rooms for further information.

The undulating nature of the parkland around the lake and wetlands helps make this a very pleasant area but also means we have small hills to negotiate. We will take them at our own pace and have time to hear the maggies carolling and enjoy the trees and shrubs which have been planted since this ceased to be an orchard. The notices, with photos, along the way, conveying the history of the area, will add interest to our 5 km walk.

TRANSPORT Carpool – leaving Southbank Blvd at 8:45 am
TRANSPORT COST Approx. $15
AREA Lerderderg State Park
MAP REFERENCE VicMap P-278820-5838655-55

Once an important source of antimony which was discovered here in 1887, this is a less frequented part of the Lerderderg State Park with a sense of remoteness which belies its closeness to Melbourne.

The walk is undulating except for a short, steep, descent at the beginning and end and a few negligible ascents. Half of the walk is on well-formed walking trails, the other half is off track through forests of box iron bark, grass trees and hakea with 4 km along the (mostly dry) creek bed where care needs to be taken.

The last antimony mine ceased operation in 1944 when it became unprofitable and after WW2 the park was used for army training. Some relics from both activities remain.

Walking poles and sturdy footwear are strongly recommended. If it rains before the walk there may be more water in the creek so it is advisable to bring a spare pair of socks in case of wet feet.
